

Biography

Missi Giesenschlag is very proud to be a life-long Yoeman. She attended school in the Cameron Independent School District from 1st grade until she graduated from C.H. Yoe High School in 1987.

In 1992, Missi received a Bachelor of Arts in English from the University of Mary Hardin-Baylor in Belton, Texas. Having graduated in December, she spent the spring of 1993 substituting in various districts before accepting a job to teach summer school at O. J. Thomas Junior High in the Cameron ISD.

During that summer school session, Missi was offered a full-time teaching position at O.J.T. for the upcoming school year. She accepted the job teaching 8th grade English and held that position for the next 13 years. From that point on, she was known by her students, and most everyone else, as Ms. G.

In Ms. G.'s third year with CISD, a new junior high was opened. Cameron Junior High school, and the adjoining Cameron Elementary, was the first new school building constructed in Cameron in decades. Five years later, Missi decided that she might one day want to pursue other avenues in education. She began graduate school at Texas A&M University in College Station, Texas in the fall of 2001 and received a Master of Education degree in August 2003.

Ms. G. spent several more years in the classroom before deciding to step into another position. In 2006, she accepted the Assistant Principal's job at Cameron Junior High. Two years later, she was named Principal, the position she currently holds.

Cameron and its students are near and dear to Ms. G.'s heart. As she enters her 19th year in education and in the CISD, she hopes to spend many more years as part of this wonderful community. There is no substitute for being a Yoeman!!
